Academic Accommodations

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://www2.carleton.ca/equity/>

Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://www2.carleton.ca/equity/>

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable) at <http://www2.carleton.ca/pmc/new-and-current-students/dates-and-deadlines/>

You can visit the Equity Services website to view the policies and to obtain more detailed information on academic accommodation at <http://www2.carleton.ca/equity/>

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own. Plagiarism includes reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source. Examples of sources from which the ideas, expressions of ideas or works of others may be drawn from include but are not limited to: books, articles, papers, literary compositions and phrases, performance compositions, chemical compounds, art works, laboratory reports, research results, calculations and the results of calculations, diagrams, constructions, computer reports, computer code/software, and material on the Internet. Plagiarism is a serious offence.

IMPORTANCE OF SYLLABUS

This syllabus is like a compass and a kind of roadmap to success in the course. You need to refer to it regularly in order to fulfill the requirements of the course especially the assignments and due dates accurately. This syllabus is also completed with detailed information about the components of the course, guidelines, and instructions that are all posted on cuLearn

E-MAILS

Any questions sent by e-mail should receive a response within two business days (weekends are not counted) or during the following class if taken place within the 48 hours following receipt of the e-mail. Please note that emails about the assignments and their format and similar information will not be returned. For this kind of information you must consult either the syllabus or cuLearn. Professor reserves the right not to answer an e-mail if the level of language used is inadequate.

OFFICIAL COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is dedicated to a deep analysis of the law of international organizations. It mainly covers regulation of transnational/global issues that transcend the territorial boundaries of nation-states and led to the creation of inter-governmental organizations (IGOs) by the states. In recent time, the effectiveness of these organizations has become a subject of intense debate by scholars, ethicists, policy makers, and non-governmental organizations. On the one hand, such debates become more sophisticated when international organizations function beyond the scope of their power attributed and consented by the member states. On the other, international organizations must undertake duties that are appropriate for the complexities of the global issues and more importantly for humanization and procedural fairness in international organizations and relations. This seeming contradiction in the mission and activity of international organizations will be covered throughout the course. In addition, many examples from the International Court of Justice (ICJ) will be taken into account and analysis to show why in some cases international organizations have acted beyond the already attributed power and how these ultra vires activities can get their legal values from the agreed upon international law and regulations.

The emergence of non-state actors and a range of complex global issues that requires re-examination of the existing structures of international organizations will be covered in the course as well. Different theoretical accounts justifying the action the power and responsibility of international organizations are other range of discussions in the present course. The issue of personality and subjectivity, accountability, the process and the legal value of the decision made by international organizations and the related issues will be discussed in the course.

TERMINAL COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course, you must:

- Be able to understand the intellectual and historical context within which international organizations have been formed and developed.
- Be able to apply a theoretical framework that best fits the study of IOs and explain the legal and political nature of international organizations.
- Be able to analyze the legal nature of international organizations, the institutional arrangements and legal instruments, and their place and role in the international legal/political system.
- Have an analytical understanding of the powers of international organizations and their impact for socialization and humanization of the lifeworld.
- Have a deep understanding of the law applicable to international institutions both within respect to internal matters and to external relations.
- Be able to interpret the legal instruments that are produced by international organizations and context in which those instruments might be applied.
- Be familiar with certain specific areas of practice of international institutions both at operational and normative levels.

REQUIRED TEXTBOOK AND OTHER READINGS

1. Jan Klabbers, An Introduction to International Institutional Law (Cambridge University Press, 2009). It is the required text. The book is available for purchase at Carleton University Bookstore.

ASSESSMENT METHODS

Course includes the following components. All Components must be completed in order to pass this course.

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Department and of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Department and the Dean.

- Mid-term exam: 25 marks - There will be a mid-term exam in class on Tuesday, October 10th. The test is comprehensive and covers all readings and lectures. The test will be 2:00 hours in length. You will answer five (out of six) descriptive questions. The maximum weight of each proper answer is 5 marks.
- Research Essay: 25 marks - You are required to write one research essay and submit it in class. The essay must not exceed 2700 words (around 10 pages double-spaced excluding citations). The essay must follow proper essay style and structure, and must use a recognized referencing style (the referencing style must be correct and consistent). If you are using in-text citation, the year of publication and page number must be cited as well. TEXTBOOK IS EXCLUDED. This essay should be accompanied by a bibliography (at least 8 academic sources must be cited. Compulsory readings are excluded). By academic sources we mean books and professional journal article.

This essay is due on Tuesday, November 07. A rubric including how your essay will be evaluated has already been posted on cuLearn. A list of the suggested topic has also been posted on cuLearn. However, you may choose your own topic of interest if it is related to the law of IOs and approved by professor.

- Final Exam: 50 marks - The exam will be cumulative and comprehensive. It covers all materials for the entire term. Final exam will include explanatory questions, analysis of scenarios, and one essay question. The exam will be taken during the final exam period.

Components of Final Mark

Evaluation format	Weight	Date
Mid-Term test	25 marks	October 10 th
Research essay	25 marks	November 7 th
Final exam	50 marks	During the final exam period
Total	100 marks	N/A

Late assignments:

Extensions beyond the original due date will not be granted. If you are ill (with a doctor's note) or have another legitimate reason for the lateness in the submission of the assignment, please see the professor with the original documents justifying your absence as soon as possible (preferably before the due date).

Essays must be handed directly to the instructor in class. Late assignments only must be submitted to the Department of Law and Legal Studies via the drop box located beside the secretariat. Assignments submitted before 4 p.m. are stamped with that day's date. After 4pm all submissions are date stamped with the following day's date. Please note that assignments sent via fax or email will not be accepted.

THREE MARKS per day will be deducted for the late assignments.

The essays are expected to be the products of your intellectual efforts, and will be evaluated based on the quality of the essay including originality, grammar, accuracy of spellings, and soundness of their contents. You should be aware of the university's rules on plagiarism.

Oral Examination: At the discretion of the instructor, students may be required to pass a brief oral examination on research papers and essays.

Course Requirements: Students must fulfill all course requirements in order to achieve a passing grade. Failure to hand in any assignment will result in a grade of F. Failure to write the final exam will result in a grade of ABS. FND (Failure No Deferred) is assigned when a student's performance is so poor during the term that they cannot pass the course even with 100% on the final examination. In such cases, instructors may use this notation on the Final Grade Report to indicate that a student has already failed the course due to inadequate term work and should not be permitted access to a deferral of the examination. Deferred final exams are available ONLY if the student is in good standing in the course.

Carleton Email Accounts: The Department of Law and Legal Studies strongly encourages students to use a campus email account. Important course and University information will be distributed via the Carleton email system.
